Procedures

Part One (40 minutes)

- In this activity, students will analyze John F. Kennedy's decision to blockade Soviet ships from entering Cuba by applying the steps of the Planful Decision-Making process. They will use the same process to make a personal decision.
- Begin by discussing the Cuban missile crisis. Use the President Kennedy Decides worksheet to guide the discussion and to introduce the Planful Decision-Making process.
- Give students a copy of the President Kennedy Decides worksheet. Give them time to write their answer to the first question and then discuss it. Follow the same procedure for each of the five questions on the worksheet.
- Brainstorm with students some decisions they recently made. Explore how they make the decision. Did they talk to others? Did they consider many alternatives? Did they get good information? Did they make a snap judgment?
- Give students the Planful Decision-Making worksheet and review it with them. Tell students to complete the worksheet for a decision they have to make.

Part Two - Career Development Connections (20 minutes)

- Engage students in a discussion of the Planful Decision-Making process. Invite students to share the decision they had to make and the steps they took. What step was difficult? What step took a lot of time? Would they use this way of making decisions in the future? For what kinds of decisions?
- Brainstorm some big decisions students will have to make in the future. Stress the importance of using the Planful Decision-Making process to help them make the best decision.
